1. You attend a meeting with a friend and a fellow named, Jim, who sits across from you. Jim has lived in the country all his life but recently decided to move to town because the people there have become harder. Jim tells you that he is not much of a drinker, but gets into frequent arguments with his new neighbors, and that this annoys him. He tells you that he will be going away for a couple of days and will not be available to talk during the time. He apologizes for leaving you so soon after meeting you. Name the Friends. Two correct answers: Jim and Patti Two incorrect answers: Bill and Sam Not attempted: Judy 2. You get up in the middle of the night and find your friend, Dick, missing from his bedroom. Looking for him in the kitchen, you find him out cold on the floor. His clothes are all wet and his glasses are missing, but you do not see a sign of forced entry. Dick has been drinking heavily, but you do not think he was inebriated. Knowing that Dick does not drink, you conclude that he must have slipped and fallen in the kitchen.

Outside, you find that the storm has paused, as it has done each day for the past five days. Now that the storm is not raging, the temperature is plummeting. You can see the ground from your place in the house and it is a few degrees below freezing. Three windows in the house are broken and the cellar door is loose. You know your friend is under a considerable amount of stress at the moment and will be upset if you notify the police. You know that your friend is a family man, so you reach out to your parents. You have no other close friends or neighbors nearby. Although not a lawyer, you have read that a judge would not normally grant emergency custody to someone who was found sleeping in a common area of a house, particularly when there is a substantial likelihood that the person was the victim of an accident or crime. Your parents are very interested in adopting Dick, but are worried about the fact that your friend is a heavy drinker. They ask you to call and see if he is all right, but understand that a judge will not assume that you would not want to live with him if you found him the victim of a crime. Three correct answers: Sandra and Kevin Three incorrect answers: Elaine and Warren Not Attempted: Dick and Jim 3. Your b7e8fdf5c8

A simple and intuitive to use application Unlike in the case of other programs of the same kind, Law School Admission Test contains no videos of mock exam questions. Instead, it provides you with the same information you'd get on the real exam, right down to the type of questions and the time limit. Practice your concentration skills This free application endeavors to acquaint you with the different factors and features that will help you stay focused on the test for a longer time. To do so, it presents a screen in which it directs your attention toward the most crucial part of the exam, whose task is to increase your chances of passing the test. The text contains useful tips and suggestions on how to avoid distractions and how to face the exam with a high level of concentration. With this particular program, you are offered to use two views: the Question View and the Results View. When you open the former, you will be provided with all the questions from the exam, which, in turn, can be scanned and saved. What's more, you will be shown a free hour before the exam, during which you can practice a few questions, understanding beforehand how to manage such a test on your own. Furthermore, this option is available in the event that you need to repeat the test. Helpful in view of the rigorous exam To help you focus on the test and avoid falling behind, free Law School Admission Test is composed of seven practice tests that will be presented to you. You have a total of three hours in each of them, after which the program gives you a free hour before the exam. Apart from that, the program will calculate your GPA and provide you with a detailed overview of your academic career. GIST With a reach of 500 000 satisfied users worldwide, Gist is the most suitable app for all your creativity needs. Whether you are an artist, writer, or photographer, our application is packed with features to help you work efficiently and to stay
